ABSTRACT

A method is provided for generating code in a block diagram environment. The method for generating code eliminates a need to use logical predicates to identify an invoking rate of a portion of a block in the block diagram environment. This 5   eliminates the need for contiguous sets of conditional code statements in the generated code.